STEPS TO REPRODUCE

1. Launch Minecraft.
2. Create or open a Creative world with default settings.
3. Run `/give @p minecraft:dragon_egg``.
4. Note the item name as "Dragon Egg."
5. Open the Creative inventory.
6. Select the Search tab.
7. Enter "Dragon Egg" in the search field.
8. Observe that no relevant results appear and the dragon egg is absent from the Creative inventory.

OBSERVED BEHAVIOUR

Actual behavior

The dragon egg is not present anywhere in the Creative inventory. It does not appear in the regular Creative tabs or in the Search tab when searching for "Dragon Egg," despite the `minecraft:dragon_egg`` item being obtainable with `/give``.

EXPECTED BEHAVIOUR

The dragon egg should be available in the Creative inventory and appear as a relevant result when searching for "Dragon Egg" in the Search tab. Players should be able to select and place it directly from Creative mode, consistent with its availability in Bedrock Edition and unlike technical blocks intentionally excluded from the inventory.

ENVIRONMENT

ORIGINAL DESCRIPTION

For a comprehensive list of other examples of issues with item positions in the Creative inventory, click here.

The bug

The dragon egg is completely absent from the Creative inventory for some reason. It would be expected it would be there, as it isn't a very technical block like barriers or command blocks which have been intentionally kept out of the Creative inventory.

This is also a parity issue, as the dragon egg does appear in Bedrock Edition's creative inventory.

How to reproduce

- Give yourself a dragon egg: `/give @p minecraft:dragon_egg``
- Note the item name - this will be used for searching
- Open the Creative inventory

- Enter the Search tab
- Search for Dragon Egg
- See no relevant results
